Burn's Concert Is Well Attended

Over 250 Pass residents gathered in Coleman school auditorium to enjoy Burns Night Concert Wednesday evening, January 25, and voted the affair one of the most successful yet held.

The Concert was sponsored by the Coleman St. Paul's United Church. The affair opened with the singing of O Canada, played by the Crows Nest Pass Symphony Orchestra, directed by Roy Upton of Coleman.

Rev. H. deLeeuw of St. Paul's United Church welcomed guests and introduced Mr. D. B. Young, of Coleman, who acted as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Mr. Young gave an interesting biography of the life of Robert Burns.

The concert was then held and featured two selections, Capriccio in A by Joseph Haydn and Serenade by R. Drigo, by the Crows Nest Pass Symphony Orchestra; two well-received vocal solos by Mr. A. McMurdo, of Pincher Creek; selections on the pipes by Pipe Major Rod Patterson of Lethbridge, who was accompanied by three pipers, one drummer and two Highland dancers of Lethbridge; two piano solos by Albert Krywolt of Bellevue; selections by the Dr. Amundsen family quartet of Natal, B. C.; two selections by the Crows Nest Pass Symphony Orchestra, Turkish March by Beethoven and Romance by Rubinstein; two vocal solos by Eric Price of Blainville; two Scottish selections by violinist Jimmie Montalbetti of Coleman; Scottish songs by Mrs. Audrey Bonne, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Beatrice Costigan, both of Blainville; two piano solos by Ralphina Delucca of Coleman; two selections by the Coleman Choral group and two selections by the Crows Nest Pass Symphony Orchestra.

The evening marking the memory of Robert Burns concluded with the singing of God Save the Queen.

Home & School Association Hear Dr. Burgman

The Coleman Home and School Association held its regular meeting Monday evening when Dr. R. B. Burgman of Blainville, addressed some 30 teachers and parents on the subject of Teeth and Their Care.

Dr. Burgman's interesting address embraced the topics of teeth deformities and what can be done to repair these irregularities. His talk was made more impressive through the showing of slides which were very revealing.

A vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Burgman.

During the business course of the meeting, plans were discussed to form groups to study the Cameron Report.

Mrs. E. Aiello gave a report on the bazaar held in December which indicated that the event had been very successful. Proceeds from this affair are used by the Home and School for such incidents as sending delegates to the Banff convention as well as sponsoring room prizes.

Mrs. Margaret Salus will have charge of the new store while Mr. Salus will operate the west end store. Mr. Salus plans to add to the staff. Official opening date has been set for March 15th.

Corson Picks All-Stars to Trounce Grands

An All-Star double header is to be played in Coleman Arena on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 4 and 5, when the powerful Coleman Grands are to meet up with the picked All-Stars of the A. B. C. & M. hockey league.

Where 90% of the hockey fans are picking the powerful Grands to take both games, Ex League President, Ed. Corson is picking the league All-Stars to take both games from the Coleman Grands.

Coleman has won 13 of their last 14 games and has now won the league championship with the play-offs to come later. Had some other team in the league won the championship the All-Star game would have been played in that city or town.

The Grands will have their full team out with all players in top shape. The All-Stars will have such players as Williamson, Quam and Sparks from Great Falls, the top first line of the league from Taber and McNamara, Bosio and Ashmore from Fernie. Game time Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. on Sunday.

Fire Damage Is Considerable

Fire that started in the vicinity of the chimney caused considerable damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe DePierro at the noon hour on Monday.

The fire was noticed by two Coleman boys who were on their way home from school.

Mrs. DePierro was visiting her mother, Mrs. Cozzi, at the time, and Mr. DePierro was at work.

The fire started near the chimney and worked its way through to the roof. Members of the Coleman Volunteer Fire Brigade rushed to the scene and prevented the fire from demolishing the home and its contents.

The roof of the four-room frame home was considerably damaged, and water damage resulted in the house also. Little damage was done to the furniture.

D. B. Young, vice-president of Coleman Collieries, announced Monday afternoon that Coleman Collieries had concluded a contract for 170,000 short tons of coking coal with Japan. The contract runs from April 1st, 1961, to March 31st, 1962, which assures the Vicary Mine of fairly steady work for the next year.

The 150,000 long ton order contract was made with three Japanese Trading Companies—the Toyomenka Company, the Asanobus Company and the Mitsubishi Company, who will, in turn, make their arrangements with Japanese Steel Companies.

The Vicary Creek Mine, some 12 miles to the north of Coleman, engages about 170 men and another 60 men at the coal cleaning and preparation plant.

Cub and Scout Tea Is Successful

The Cub and Boy Scout tea held in the Elks hall in Coleman Saturday was a very successful event.

During the afternoon the Cubs sold grab boxes, novelties and home made candy while the Boy Scouts were kept busy serving the tea tables. The unique affair was very colorful as the lads were in uniform.

An auction sale of donated articles was held and conducted by Scoutmaster Mel Dunford, with the assistance of Graham Atkinson and Jack Colwell. This affair realized a nice profit for the Scouts and Cubs and as a result the Group committee have expressed their thanks and appreciation to all who donated articles for the sale, to those who donated articles for the grab boxes, the candy and bake sale and to the Elks Lodge for supplying gratis the hall and to all who assisted in any way to make the affair the success it proved itself.

Proceeds from the affair will be used for the Scouts attending the Jamboree in Ottawa, Ont., in July and also for summer camps for the boys.

Chimney Fire Is Checked

Coleman Volunteer Fire Brigade were called out at around 8:00 in the evening of Friday to check a fire in the Coleman Collieries large office.

The fire was located and fortunately was only a chimney fire which was quickly put under control with no damage reported.

The large three-story frame and stucco building is located in Cardondale, West Coleman.

The Alberta Government Travel Bureau is distributing almost 6,000 posters of three scenes of Alberta to hundreds of travel offices and other points of travel vantage abroad, as part of its intense campaign to step up tourism in the province from outside the province and outside Canada.

The three posters are full color litho reproductions of Alberta scenes, and are striking in their intensity of color, and fidelity of detail. They were produced by an Alberta printing house.

The subjects show a view of Waterton National Park with the mountains fringing the length of Waterton Lake, and the small excursion steamer circling for a landing at Waterton townsite after a trip to Glacier National Park at the other end of the lake; a view of Banff townsite from the side of Sulphur Mountain, with two cars of the Sulphur Mountain gondola lift in the foreground, framing Mt. Stoney Square; and the popular view of a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police chatting with an Indian in full dress at one of Alberta's many festive Indian occasions.

It is hoped that in successive years other views of Alberta's many attractions will be used on these posters. In the above picture, Dan E. C. Campbell, director of the Alberta Travel Bureau, inspects the posters with Hal Martin, director of Publications.

OF MANY THINGS (By Ambrose Hills)

Nothing Recedes Like Success

Herbert R. Mayes was fired from his job of editing at 58 years of age. At his age, it looked like curtains. However, the publishers of another magazine which was having a rough time, decided to take a chance on him. He was so eager to show his former publishers what he could do that he tore into the job with a will. It paid off. He found that being fired was good for him, and he coined the expression, "Nothing recedes like success".

There's truth in it. Too much success can make a person smug. Says Mayes, in a Pageant magazine story: "Most people can do a lot better than they are doing. What they need is a push and a challenge."

Another interesting thing about Mayes.—When he was married, he and his wife made a deal. He was to be free to walk out on a job any time he thought he should, regardless of what it might mean to their standard of living. That didn't mean he was to quit a job out of pique, but to gamble on change if he felt it was necessary. That sense of freedom helped to make him a fine editor. He drives himself hard at office and home and he likes it, because he does it voluntarily. A man driven by his own motivation seldom tires; it is the man in the rut who tires.

I know a big business firm which found that to be true. They decided to let each employee make his own decision about how he could be more productive. Many an employee who formerly chugged along at a lazy gait came up with good ideas on how to improve his own output. The entire firm benefits, and the employees of that company are among the happiest and most energetic workers anywhere.

To have a feeling of independence based on your own estimate of what you can or cannot do is a great driving force,—making life zestful and joyful. Freedom, spiritually and economically, is like top-grade gasoline — it propels you forward smoothly and efficiently. It was the jet-like force which built the New World so speedily. It could, if given a chance, keep it forging ahead.

Unfortunately, "nothing recedes like success", and far too many of us prefer a secure rut to the dynamic forward drive of freedom.

Effects Of TV On Children

Canadian children spend an average of 18½ hours a week — about one-sixth of their waking hours — watching the TV set.

The Canadian Home and School and Parent - Teacher Federation believes that this constant exposure to the "fantasy" world of television must be affecting our children. Nobody knows if the over-all result is bad, good or insignificant because no long-term, co-ordinated research into the question has ever been undertaken.

The Federation, after its 1960 annual meeting, wrote the Board of Broadcast Governors asking that funds should be allocated to undertake this important task (it was suggested that an adequate sum would be one-tenth of one per cent of the Parliamentary grants to the CBC).

The reply has indicated that there are not sufficient funds to undertake the appropriate research in Canada, but that research studies in other countries may be assembled by the CBC and examined in relation to the Canadian situation.

Canada Homes and School is not satisfied with this compromise, and intends to press further for research that will show in what way, and to what extent, this huge new force in our living rooms is influencing our children, and thereby affecting Canada's future.

The growing world population

(Calgary Albertan)
Not only are man's problems increasing but man himself is multiplying at an unprecedented rate. According to figures released by a United Nations report, the world population increased last year by 48,000,000. The increase is almost three times as great as Canada's total population.

So much attention is paid to the international levels, that the political scene at local national and international explosion in the world and the grave problems it portends for the future command little general interest outside the scientific field studying the material needs of man related to supply of these. The eminent British biologist, Julian Huxley, when asked what would be his number one scientific project if unlimited funds were placed at his disposal, replied his project would be population control.

It is not easy for people in North America to fully appreciate the tremendous increase in world population that is taking place. The effect has not been felt in North America to the same degree it is being experienced in other parts of the world. Over-crowding in the United States and Canada cannot be compared with conditions existing in some other countries.

Earlier this year the London Daily Express published a graph relating to the birth-rate in various parts of the world. According to the information given, out of every nine babies being born into this day and age, one is a North American, one a South American, one a European, and the Afro-Asian nations account for the other six.

Opinion differs on whether the world will be able in the field of supply to meet ever-increasing material demands. What does seem obvious is that the challenge can only be met in a peaceful world climate where the emphasis is on the fullest utilization of world resources. War would eliminate any chance of meeting the challenge successfully.

CALGARY POWER LTD.

SERVING THE PROVINCE OF ALBERTA

When the first settlers came to Alberta, they had no idea that electricity would someday be carried for hundreds of miles. The first hydro developments were small water-wheel plants to serve individual operations. One of these was the old Calgary Water Power Plant on the Bow River just west of Calgary's Centre Street bridge.

Over the years Calgary Power has grown with Alberta, developing power to serve Alberta towns, farms and industries. The Bow River hydro power system in south-western Alberta, strengthened by storage developments, permits the careful use and re-use of all available water and is assisting in meeting the future power needs of Alberta — Canada's "Province of Opportunity!"

Announces Annual Sportsman's Show

Mr. Stan Henders, president of the Calgary Fish and Game Association today announced the "1st Annual Sportsman's Show", to be held in the Jubilee Auditorium on March 30 to April 1st.

Plans have been finalized for a complete show, with displays of all types of sporting equipment, participation sports and stage attractions. "It is planned," said Mr. Henders, "to provide a means of bringing all sports to the attention of the people of Calgary and district". This Sportsman's Show will cover every phase in sports from skin diving to big game hunting — and from archery to fly tying.

Space has been provided for 80 display booths in the auditorium, where spectators can see the latest sports equipment demonstrated. Many special features — such as taxidermy and fly-tying demonstrations, fast draw — competitions, gymnastic displays, shooting galleries and sketch and photographic displays will be held in conjunction with the show.

Mr. Henders said members of the Association have been active on the project for some months, and have confirmed more than half of the display space with sporting goods firms, etc. As the first Annual Sportsman's Show of the Association, Mr. Henders pointed out this was strictly a Fish and Game venture and in no way connected with other promotions held in the city.

Anyone requiring further information may do so by contacting Mr. Henders at CR 7-4929 or post office box 421, Calgary, Alberta.

Armed robbery ever increasing menace

Armed robbery is an ever-increasing menace but more dangerous than the bandit himself is the fundamental danger of our own complacency towards misfortunes which continually plague others, says the RCMP.

Get rid of that "it couldn't happen to me" idea. A realistic and positive approach to this type of crime provides the best measure of defence against it.

Never overlook the possibility of a hold-up. The armed robber is a potential killer. You may be his next victim. Remember, before you risk your life, this criminal is desperate. He will use any method to get what he wants.

Banks should be wary of strangers who seek change or open small accounts. This is a common ruse used by the criminal to gain intimate knowledge or familiarity himself with the premises.

Observe persons loitering near your place of business. They may be "casing" the premises. If you are suspicious, call the police.

Don't make it easy for the bandit. Do not keep excess cash where it will be a temptation to the hold-up man.

Criminals have been known to pose as a repairman to gain information when planning a robbery. Do not accept them at face value. Check their credentials.

In the event a hold-up occurs do not allow customers or employees to touch anything — valuable evidence may be destroyed.

Controlling Poison Ivy by Herbicides

Poison ivy and the related poison oak can be controlled with herbicides, says Dr. J. R. Hay of the Plant Research Institute, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Poison ivy is found in all provinces of Canada but is more prevalent in Ontario and Western Quebec. From Quebec City eastward it is found less frequently and from Winnipeg to the Pacific coast it is troublesome mainly at lake and woodland resorts. Poison oak occurs in British Columbia.

Products containing amino triazole or silvex give good control. For preparations containing amino triazole, four pounds of the active ingredient per acre is recommended, and two pounds per acre for silvex. A commercial mixture of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T (brushkiller) at two pounds of acid equivalent per acre is slightly less effective.

Directions for spraying small areas are given on containers. It is extremely important that a thorough job be done in applying the chemical, says Dr. Hay, as this can make the difference between excellent and mediocre results. Points to remember are:

1. Use enough solution to wet all foliage thoroughly, going over the area twice if necessary.

2. Spray when the leaves are fully grown from mid-June to mid-August in Eastern Canada, and proportionately earlier in B. C. Avoid spraying during dry periods as the chemicals are not so effective.

3. Repeat if new growth occurs. If the roots are not completely killed the new growth will appear in late summer or in the next season and should be sprayed to prevent re-establishment of the weed.

Salt steriliants containing sodium borate also give good control of poison ivy. These should be applied in early spring or in the fall when there is adequate rainfall to carry the chemicals into the soil. They may be applied dry in a granular form or may be mixed with water. All vegetation in the area treated will be killed for at least one season.

When working in poison ivy, rubber boots and gaiter gloves should be worn, cautions Dr. Hay. Avoid skin contact with the leaves, stems, roots and equipment. Wash hands, wearing apparel and equipment thoroughly after spraying.

Is the goldeye a mooneye?

Yes, the famed Winnipeg goldeye, highly prized as a table delicacy when smoked and dried, belongs to the small family of fresh water fish known as mooneyes.

It is a narrow, deep-bodied silvery fish, shieldlike in appearance and covered with large loose scales and characterized by a small mouth with many sharp teeth located in the jaws and on the tongue.

The average goldeye is about a foot long and weighs less than a pound although some reach a length of 17 inches and a weight of two pounds.

Commercial quantities of goldeye are taken in gill-net fisheries in the lakes and rivers of Manitoba, in Lake Claire in northern Alberta and in Sandy Lake in northern Ontario.

Rich Raisin Rolls ...

Raisins are grapes dried in the sun or by artificial heat, and they have a long and romantic history.

The Bible mentions that subjects of King David brought "asses laden with cheese and raisins" to pay their taxes. And as early as 400 B. C. Armenia had a flourishing raisin business. By 1300 AD Spain and Hungary were competing for leadership in the world's raisin market. In later centuries the world's supply of this fruit came from Spain, Asia Minor and Greece. No, practically all the raisins bought in Canada come from California and a few other southwestern states.

Raisins have long been a popular ingredient in baked goods. They can add a flavoursome note to a recipe without making it too sweet. Consequently raisin bread and rolls are doubly versatile. They can be served toasted for breakfast or used for sandwiches, and they can also be served as a tea-time dainty. The recipe for Rich Raisin Rolls should become a well loved favorite in most homes. The buns are made from a basic sweet dough, generously studded with raisins. They are quite large in size with a moist and tender texture. The rolls are especially delicious when toasted and served as a tea time dainty.

Rich Raisin Rolls—

Yield—one and half dozen rolls.
half cup milk
one-third cup lightly packed brown sugar half teaspoon salt
one-third cup butter or margarine half cup lukewarm water one teaspoon granulated yeast one envelope active dry yeast one well beaten egg three and half cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour
one and half cups seedless raisins
Scald milk; stir in one-third cup brown sugar, salt and butter or margarine. Cool to lukewarm. Measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the one teaspoon granulated sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, well beaten egg and two cups of the flour; beat until smooth and elastic. Stir in the raisins and sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough—about one and half cups more. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk—about one and quarter hours. Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into two equal portions. Form each portion into a roll nine inches long; cut each roll into nine equal pieces. Cover with a tea towel. Let rest 10 minutes. Shape each piece of dough into a smooth ball and arrange the balls, well apart, on greased cookie sheets. Grease tops. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 45 minutes.

Sprinkle risen buns with a little granulated sugar. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) 15 to 18 minutes.

Announcement Re Nurses

Nurses with initial registration in any province, state or country, but not necessarily Alberta registrants, who would be willing to volunteer for emergency disaster nursing in their area are requested to submit their name, address, phone number, hospital school of nursing and year of graduation to the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses, Provincial Office, Edmonton.

It is the intention of Emergency Health Services, Department of Public Health, in co-operation with the A.A.R.N. to set up a provincial roster for use in the event of emergencies or disasters.

New home safety device locks plugs in sockets

A new home safety device that keeps electric plugs firmly locked into wall sockets, and children's fingers safely locked out of them, has finally been invented.

Designed to prevent that budget-sinking moment when a woman opens the family freezer to find the contents thawed and ruined because Junior playfully pulled the plug out of the wall yesterday, the safety plug lock can be installed on any electric outlet in moments.

An inconspicuous two-piece plastic arm, the 49 cent lock attaches easily to the face-plate of the outlet. Nestling firmly over the plug, it prevents it from being accidentally dislodged by youngsters, pets or routine house cleaning chores. And when in place children cannot probe or poke toys into the connection.

When necessary, the lock can be removed in seconds to disconnect the cord. The only tool necessary is a screw-driver.

Distributed by Cords of Canada Ltd., the safety plug lock is already being widely used in stores, hospitals and factories to prevent accidental power shut-offs to important equipment like ice cream freezers, anaesthetic equipment and assembly line machinery. Now they are moving into the most accident-prone place in the world—the home.

Caribou Saved By Photography

Canadian caribou can thank an aerial survey by Spartan Air Services for their survival. Once counted in hundreds of thousands, these native Canadians have been gradually driven north by the advance of civilization. During severe winters when thick snow covers all accessible fodder, the caribou are reduced to eating the bark off trees and many of them starve.

The Wild Life Service of the Department of Northern Affairs in Ottawa, wants to protect the caribou from extinction — which can be done by dropping bales of hay from aircraft at points where food is most scarce.

But where are those points? Unless they are accurately spotted, the hay will go to waste and hundreds of caribou a few miles away may still starve.

Casual inspection from the air does not solve the problem, for by the time the caribou get hungry the vast expanse of the north is blanketed with snow. Even in the summer it is difficult to analyze vegetation by just flying over. But the magic eye of the aerial survey camera, aided by camouflage detection film, infra-red film and other devices, can see far more than any human observer.

Spartan Air Services, which has surveyed more than 300,000 square miles of forest all over Canada, has developed methods of assessing with amazing accuracy soil and vegetation characteristics.

Analyzing its aerial maps Spartan tells the Wild Life Service exactly where vegetation conditions require additional fodder for the animals. Such pin-pointing of the help is essential, as hay dropped more or less at random would not do much good for the starving caribou.

Thus the wild animals, victims of our technical civilization, are saved by the same technology — which enables a camera flown at 10,000 feet to spot details invisible to the man on the ground.

Team of seven doctors repair smashed head

OSHAWA, Ont. — When the ambulance drivers lifted Jean Arnold, 26, from the tangled metal of the front seat she looked a worse wreck than the car.

A month later, on the way to recovery, the industrial nurse told a reporter how a team of seven doctors at Oshawa General Hospital treated her injuries after she smashed her head into the dashboard in an automobile accident Feb. 7.

Her upper jaw was broken into many pieces, completely detached from the base of her skull and partly forced down her throat; her nose was broken, 14 teeth were knocked out. The lower jaw was broken in two places, her back was injured and she suffered a concussion.

The admitting doctor called for X-rays to determine whether there was damage to the brain from the concussion. There wasn't.

The anaesthetist could not use regular procedures in the operating room because her throat was locked. A surgeon performed a tracheotomy, cutting into her windpipe through her throat to inject a tube through which anaesthetic was administered.

Another surgeon brought together the more than 40 pieces of the upper jaw and secured them by using an unusual type of splint. Her head was encased in a plaster cap with steel rods protruding out over her forehead, clamping the upper jaw in place. Another ran from the roof of her mouth. Both clamps were connected by a third splint.

The doctors were stymied in trying to determine the correct shape of her broken palate until a dental surgeon uncovered a two-year-old cast of her mouth. From this a plate shaped exactly to her palate was made to support her jaw.

Nose and sinus damage was repaired. For days, she was fed through a tube into her stomach and since she could not move her mouth, breathing continued through the tracheotomy.

Three weeks after the accident doctors said it would take six more weeks to repair her fractures. The next day the splints were removed to examine the jaw and it was found the bone had healed amazingly fast, one doctor said. She was allowed to go home that day.

Anglicans seek more clergy recruits

Increased emphasis on the need for recruits for the ministry will be given by the Anglican Church of Canada through the appointment of the Rev. H. B. Barrett, as associate secretary, department of religious education, division of college work, youth work and church vocations.

Mr. Barrett, formerly Dean of residence and professor of New Testament studies at the Anglican theological college in Vancouver, joined the general synod department of religious education last year to do youth and adult work. His new duties are designed to encourage young men, college students, as well as older laymen, to consider the ministry as their vocation.

The growing need for more clergy prompted the Anglican theological colleges across Canada which at the present time provide only 100 new clergy each year. The need is for at least 200.

Mr. Barrett will help clergy acquaint people with the various areas of service in the church at home and abroad. Of prime importance is the need for clergy to serve the Canadian north in the Arctic and Yukon.

He will also undertake extensive work at youth conferences and rallies to interest all young people in church vocations, pointing out the areas of service in the church at home and abroad. Of prime importance is the need for clergy to serve the Canadian north in the Arctic and Yukon.

Alberta's 250,000 head of milch cows contribute to the province's $47,000,000 dairy industry.

Compact Two-Bedroom House Suitable For Small Family

The principal plan characteristic of this design by architect M. G. Dixon, of Ottawa, is the arrangement of the hall which separates the bedrooms from the living area. In a small house this ensures privacy and isolates noise.

The basement, which is only eight steps down from the rear entrance, has a cold storage cupboard and clear areas that could be used for workshop and playroom space. The best orientation of the house is to have the fireplace wall facing north. The total floor area is 912 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 18 feet by 27 feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 124, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.
